Abstract

Conditional Access System

A conditional access system in which entitlement control messages (ECMs) containing the encryption keys used to encrypt a programme transmission, are sent to a set-top box over a secure communications channel separate from the channel used for transmission of the encrypted programme.